[From the Alleghany Mail, July 3.]. La Grange had a case of John Gilpinism, a day or two since, which, for amount of laughter it afforded and the destruction of ministerial dignity which it involved, has never been surpassed-in that village, at least. There was a pl asant evening and it occurred to the rector of the Unitarian Church, the Rev. Mr. Luson found that he must take some means other that the ordinary one to retain his seat, and, forgetting his spurs, he clasped his feet tightly under the horse's body. The horse leaped as if it had been stung by a snake, and shot away at a fearful rate. . The faster he went the tighter the luckless pastor clung to him. The spurs sank into his sides, and, maddened with pain, he went thundering up the street at the top of his speed. On the two went past the school-house and by the residences. Children and

ETTER FROM A COLORED PRESIDING ELDER.

Mr. Elitor:-Many of my race in these regions are becoming wonderfully stirred up about emigrating to among the colored people, which has Mr. H. R. STEVENS. and what property they had and gone heartily recommend it to everyle iy.

From what the advocates of emigration say, it would seem as if in Liberia seasons are always good, the soil rich, crops abundant, one can sell everything high and buy everything cheap, work half your time only, and get rich; money a plenty and no poor kin; sickness and sorrow, pain and death seldom known; the innocent never punished, the guilty never free; justice, righteousness and mercy prevail in that fair clime. Oh, what folly!! and yet such is the song of those who want us all to "break up" and move to Liberia!

Of course it has been very gloomy with us here, but God is still with us, and the clouds are disappearing, and peace and safety, friendship and harmony between the races; prosperity and happiness smiles in our view. We have many good churches already built, good free schools in operation, and more ample provisions for the edacation of our youth is contemplated. We now own and pay tax on a conpersonal property. This species of fruit, which is not yet generally cultivated, is said to be excellent food for chickens and hogs, and no doubt will soon become as much appreciated as any other fruit tree. It makes a beautiful shade tree also.

FRANK LESLIE'S POPULAR MONTHLY for November contains some highly interesting matter. It is full of variety, just what our readers delight in. It contains an excellent and very liberally illustrated article on the late M. Thiers, ex-President of the French Republic one on "The Coast Fisheries of America," (about 30 illustrations): another on "The Artificial Product one of Light," (20 illustrations), and several others. To these are added some very excellent short stories, continued a number of wel come paragraphs and anecdotes of tales, natural and political history, while science, art, poetry, wit and humor find their plases among its many columns. The end of the year draws near, and a subscription to the MONTHLY for 1878 would make a very desirable holiday present or a New Year's gift in the home-circle. The POPULAR MONTHLY is the best and cheapest, publication of its kind in the world. Is Farming a Good Business, r This is a question which many young men have long been asking. The stringency of the times, and the vast number now thrown out of work, have caused the inquiry to become a martyr to Dyspensis, Constigution, and Piles. Last spring your uills were recommended to me; I used them (but with little taith). I am now a well man, have good appetite, digestion per ect, regulars ools, piles gone, and I have gained forty pounds shild flesh. They are worth their weight to gold.

Rev. R. L. SIMPSON, Lenisville, Ky. have caused the inquiry to become still more frequent, and to be made every other business to make it good; that is, it must be well followed. No neglected business is good. There is no kind of businss which will enable one to step easily and at once into a fortune. Industry, prudence and selfsarrifice are the unalterable conditions of success in all under akings.

Farming offers certain advantages and is attended by certain drawbacks. We will mention some of each: **

So far as health is concerned, farming affords abundant exercise. This is one of its strongest recommendat tions; for what is wealth, what ever is life, without health: " -*

· To a person fond of natural history and familiar with the elementary principles of some of its branches, a farm affords a desirable opportunity for the cultivation of scientaic knowledge. And if one's tastes run that way, there is a great delight in flowers and trees and animal life.

As a means of acquiring money farming is slow at first, and is never very rapid. An independence and a competency may be secured with a considerable degree of certainty; but if a young man has an ambition to possess a large fortune he is not like ly to achieve it by farming.

Experience is requisite to success in this as well as in every other pursuit. It is quite a common notion that any one can manage a farm; but this is a great mistake. Any young man who contemplates taking up government hand and occupying it, and act wisely to first engage himself for a year with a practical farmer, thus acquiring not only a year's tuition in the business he is to follow, but whatever sum he can save out of his wages as a much needed capital.

Feeding Horses.

The Michigan Farmer has this good advice; Almost of more importance tlian the form in which food is given. are the frequency and regularity of meals. The horse's digestive organs are not constructed for long fasts. Long-intervals without food produce hunger, and hunger begets voracit food is bolted, and indigestion and colic follow. This is doubly true and and dangerous with horses doing hard work. They come to their longdeforred meal not only hungry, but exhausted; not only is the food bolted. but the stomach is in such a state as to be incapable of thoroughly active digestion, and is overpowered by half the amount of food it could otherwise digest. The prevention of waste is almost attained when we give a proper form; but there are two points to which it is right to devote some attention-the form of the mangers and attention to the wants of the individual animals. The mangers should not be less than three feet long, eighteen inches wide and twelve inches deep. They should have an upper border of wood projecting inward for two inches, and a transverse bar of half-inch iron across the middle. A piece of two inch hoop iron, on the top of the manger, protects it from damage by the horse's teeth. This simplearrangement prevents the borse from throwing out his corn, and the provender is not set in so thick a layer as in the ordinary narrow and EGGS FOR WINTER USE.—It is a foolish plan to be seeking the best method for "putting down eggs." . This used to be deemed one of the first tests of thrifty house-keeping-the number of eggs put down for winter use. But a much better way is to have your eggs fresh the year round. If hens serve enough to eat and of the Vickolty, Augusta, Maine. If hens leave enough to eat and of the ways expect to feed some grain to the fowls; then if they would save all of the waste meat that accumulates in the fall to feed the hens in the winter, they would be repaid in fresh eggs. This makes good work for the boys, in saving such refuse, in some outbuilding, to chop up and use when needed .- American Poultry Journal.

DR. SAGE'S CATARRH REMEDY. It is the only form of instrument yet invented with which duid medicine can be carried high up and perfectly applied to all parts of the affected masal masages, and the chambers or cavities communicating therewith, in which sores and dicers frequently exist, and from which the catarrhal discharge generally proceeds. The want of success in treating Catarrh heretofore has arisen largely from the impossibility of applying remedies to the excities and claimbers by any of the origony methods. This obsacle in the way of effecting cares is entirely overcome by the invention of the Douche. Its use is pleasant and so simple that a chibi can understand it. Full and explicit directions accompany each instrument. When used with this instrument, Dr. sage's Canarrh Remedy cares recent attacks of headache, discharge fahirg into throat, sometimes profise, watery, thick mucus, purulent, offensive, etc. In others, a dryness, dry, watery, weat, or indamed eyes, stopping up, or obstruction, of nasal passages, ringing in ears, dearness, lawking and coughing to clear throat, incerations, scabs from ulcers, voice alterel, masal twang, offensive breath, impaired or total deprivation of sense of smell and taste, dizziness, montal degression, loss of appetite, indigestion.

mental depression, loss of appetite, indigestion, colarged tonsils, ticking cough, etc. Only a few of these symptoms are likely to be present in any ease at one time.

Fir. Sage's Catarrh Remedy, when used with Fir Fierce's Nasal Bouche, and accompanied with the constitutional treatment which is resonanceased in the pumphlet that wraps each hottle of the Remedy, is a perfect specific for this loatisome disease.
