THAT TERRIBLE CHILD. Celestina Maria, said the widow Wilkins, I want you to behave very well this afternoon. What for ma? Because I expect Mr. Worthington to tea. You know Mr. Worthington don't you? Yes, ma; he is that man with the long nose. Celestina Maria, I am shocked to hear you speak so improperly.

noses in general, and being very thin besides, its length was the more prominent and remarkable. As soon as he entered the room, Celestina Maria as if fascinated, fixed her eyes upon the remarkable organ. Perhaps Mr. Worthington felt the gaze, for he raised his handkerchief three or four times, ostensibly to wipe his face, but really to conceal his nose temporarily or so Mrs Wilkins thought. 'Drat the child, she said to herself, I wish she would have the sense to look some where else than at Mr. Worthington's nose. She is the most perverse child.

I am sorry to have left you so long Mr. Worthington, she said; but these servants are not to be trusted entirely I have to look after Susan a little, or she would make some sad blunders. You are quite excusable madam, said the bachelor politely. I hope Celestina Maria has not troubled you, said her mother. O, no, not at all. Get down out of the gentleman's lap said, Mrs. Wilkins. You are too heavy. Mr. Worthington didn't object for he began to feel that Celestina was heavy.

"The Unity of Small Things." The poet-editor of the Augusta Constitutionalist has some excellent remarks upon the above topic. He says among other things; "In America everything is wasted. In Europe everything is saved. Nothing is too mean to be utilized. What the American throws away, the Frenchman, for instance makes a profit of it." He says they actually utilize empty sardine boxes, a thing that would never occur to an American.

Why a Schoolmaster Left Town. A Virginia City man, says the Chronicle, who formerly taught school in Honey Lake valley, has been telling Dan Quille why he left that rural region. While employed as a teacher, it seems he "boarded around," and one night, while at the house of an old ranchman, gave one of his boys some extra instructions in geography. The old man overheard him telling the boy that the earth turned round once in twenty-four hours, and "kicked" against it. He said he had heard such stuff talked, but there was nothing in it, as he could prove. He filled a tin cup with water, and set it on the top of his gate post, saying: "Now young fellow, if the world flops over, as you say, the water will be all out of that cup in the morning, and you will be right; if the water is still in the cup, I'll be right, and the world don't flop over."

"Old Prob." "Old Prob." sits at Washington and receives each day a report of the weather in all parts of the country. He has maps of the United States, and he makes marks on them, each day to show the direction of the wind, how fast it is traveling, the height of the thermometer and barometer, and the state of the weather. He sees the storm begin in the Rocky Mountains and travel all over the country toward the East. He sees the cloudy weather moving in front of the storm, and the clearing weather behind it. He observes the width of the storm and its shape, and can tell how fast it will move and how much country it will cover, and how many cities and towns it will touch. He can thus telegraph to places that lie in the path of the storm, and can warn them that it is coming.

Views of Gen. Merritt on the political situation in New York—Butler's manipulation of soldiers' home funds, etc.

Politics in New York.

Washington, Sept. 28.—Gen. Merritt Collector of the port of New York came here yesterday on official business and returned to-day.

Gen. Merritt says, in consequence of this political New York are just now in a very uncertain condition, and it is a bold man who will undertake to prophesy the result of the November election.

Some of the opponents of Gen. Butler have been poking around the treasury to discover what they can concerning his management of the finances of the different "soldiers homes" throughout the country as no is custodian of the funds.

The Yellow Fever.

New Orleans, Oct. 2.—From noon to 6 P. M., there were 19 deaths and 88 cases. Since September 29 there have been 75 deaths.

New Orleans, Oct. 3.—A New Orleans special says: Nearly fifteen thousand persons who have returned from the Lake Shore watering places are being protected almost as fast as they arrive.

At Barnes' Hotel, Mississippi City, those who died were buried unconfined.

We waited to send to New Orleans for coffins we would have to carry them out in buckets.

The Italian refugees, who two months ago, anterior to the fever, encamped at Camp Parapet, are returning, many having recently sickened.

At the office of the Board of Health this morning it was announced that the fever is increasing, and will increase so long as absentees from any locality flock into the city.

Thirty-six deaths are reported for the last twenty-four hours, and one hundred new cases.

Rock Hill S. C.

Mr. Editor:—It was necessary for your correspondent to visit the neighboring town of Rock Hill, a few days ago, and it is his pleasure to note the marks of the great energy, enterprise and prosperity of the little town of which, but a few weeks ago, the business portion was lying—"one heap of ashes!"

But Mr. Editor, the people of Rock Hill are as kind and clever as they are enterprising and energetic in business.

But Mr. Editor, the people of Rock Hill are as kind and clever as they are enterprising and energetic in business. Your correspondent went there a perfect stranger, yet he must say that he was never treated with greater kindness and consideration in all his life.

That Row About Kimpton.

WHAT THE GOVERNOR OF SOUTH CAROLINA SAID TO THE GOVERNOR OF MASSACHUSETTS—THE LATTER IS HEARD IN REPLY.

His Excellency Wade Hampton, Governor of South Carolina, has addressed to Governor Rice, of Massachusetts, the letter which we reproduce. This letter grows out of Rice's refusal to honor Governor Hampton's requisition for the thiefing ex-Treasurer, Kimpton, and is just such a manly and dignified document as might have been expected, under the circumstances, from the South Carolina executive.

The State of South Carolina, Executive Chamber, Columbia, September 24, 1878.

To His Excellency Alexander H. Rice, Governor, Boston, Mass. Sir: Owing to unavoidable absence, your letter refusing to surrender Hiram H. Kimpton, a fugitive from justice, arrested in Massachusetts, for whose delivery upon indictment regularly found against him here for a crime committed in this State, I, as the Governor of South Carolina, made demand upon you as the Governor of Massachusetts, in accordance with the constitution of the United States, and the act of Congress, passed in pursuance thereof, has not been previously replied to.

Mr. Editor:—It was necessary for your correspondent to visit the neighboring town of Rock Hill, a few days ago, and it is his pleasure to note the marks of the great energy, enterprise and prosperity of the little town of which, but a few weeks ago, the business portion was lying—"one heap of ashes!"

Doston, Oct. 2.—Gov. Rice declines to put Gov. Hampton's letter relative to the Kimpton matter, upon the files of the Executive Department. He has forwarded the following communication:

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS, EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT, Boston, S pt 30.

His Excellency, Wade Hampton, Governor, Columbia, S. C. Sir:—I received on Saturday last an extraordinary official communication, addressed to me over your signature, the contents of which I had read in the newspapers three days before. I beg to remind your Excellency that any attempted rebuke of Massachusetts by South Carolina, for non-observance of the constitutional or statutory obligations, is a refinement of sarcasm which renders any other defence of the former unnecessary.

The treatment of the case of Hiram H. Kimpton by the authorities of this Commonwealth, was unimpaired by any personal or political considerations. Massachusetts had no quarrel with South Carolina, and had no friendship for Kimpton, but was bound to extend to each their respective rights under the laws.

Charlotte Observer: One of our most intelligent and observant farmers remarks upon the fact that there is a great deal of mast upon the trees this year, and says he has observed that this is an invariable precursor of a hard winter.

Butler Interviewed.

HE DECLARES THAT RESUMPTION WILL BE A FAILURE.

"As to the resumption act, general, do you think it possible that public sentiment could be aroused in time to prevent its going into effect on January 1st, 1879?"

"No, sir; that is not possible. An act of repeal could not be passed over Mr. Hayes' veto, and he would certainly veto it."

"About Sherman's vacillating course do you think that Maine frightened him?"

"Sherman saw that he could not carry out what he undertook. He began to pay out silver unlimitedly. It was evident that his supply would soon be exhausted; therefore he got frightened and had to hold up. He could not have stood it. It was evident that he could not."

"Then you suppose he could go on paying out coin with the rate of discount at the Bank of England at 4 1/2 per cent and with any premium on gold remaining?"

"He could not do it." "Then you think that resumption in January cannot be carried out?"

"It is going to be a failure on the part of the government and a perfect destruction of values. On the other hand, it must result in a contraction on the part of the bank and everybody else."

"Then you think that after the effort to resume has proved a failure, legislation will be necessary to repair the damage?"

"Yes; and one thing is certain, it will destroy the Republican party." Boston Herald.

PUBLICANS AND SINNERS.—I was told the other day by a distinguished clergyman that he had a discussion with one of his old colored friends, and had asked him among other things, why he was not a Democrat.

Governor Hampton's Proposition Declined.—It is announced from Washington that Commissioner Bacon to whom the matter was referred, has declined to entertain the novel proposition of Governor Hampton, of South Carolina, who requested that the State authorities be allowed to collect United States internal revenue taxes in that State on account of the great difficulties experienced by United States revenue officers in the performance of their duty.

"Wind," says our old horseman, "is the grand secret of a fast horse. Good lungs will cover multitude of faults; while, on the other hand, perfection of shape and form are useless when the wind is out. The chest, therefore, in all cases, should be large and capacious. In shape it may vary somewhat according to the service to which the horse is to be put. If he is apt to be kept for slow work and heavy drawing, the chest may be circular in form, because this shape is one of strength and bulk, to receive and bear up against the pressure of the collar, while, at the same time, sufficient room is secured for that expansion of the lungs caused by slow regular work. But if the chest is circular, let it be at the same time deep, or else the lungs may be cramped. A horse with a shallow chest is worthless for any purpose. The rule then is this: For a draught horse, a circular but deep chest; but as you pass through the different degrees of speed up to the racer and trotter, the chest will increase in depth, compared to its roundness, until, for the highest rate of speed, you must take a chest as deep as a greyhound, and at the same time not lacking in strength." — Prairie Farmer.

Practical and Sentimental Sides of Farm Life.
Poets have sung the delights of the farmer's life in strains so enchanting that one might wonder why all the world has not forsaken every other pursuit and taken its life to the tilling of the soil. But the farmer himself, in the unsold bay-field, or plodding in the clayey furrow at the tail of his plow, with a free-holder's right sticking to each boot, or bending, with aching back, between the corn rows, or breathing the winter stews, or in his roundness, until, for the highest rate of speed, you must take a chest as deep as a greyhound, and at the same time not lacking in strength.

To him this life appears as full of toil and care and evil chances as that of any other toiler. And true the life of an ordinary farmer is hard, with too little to soften it—too much of work, too little of play. But as true is what the poet says so long ago: "Thrice happy are the husbandmen if they could but see their blessings," for they have independence, more than any others who by the sweat of the brow earn their bread, and the pure air of heaven to breathe and the blessed privilege of daily communion with nature.

It is not easy for the farmer to see any beauty in his enemies,—the meadow full of daisies, with which he is forever fighting, or by which he has been ignominiously conquered; the encroaching ranks of golden-rod along the borders of his fields, and the bristling bayonets of those Canadian invaders, the thistles. How few farmers, or other people for that matter, see in the climbing bushes of the drawing day, or the gorgeous painting of its close, or in the perfect day itself, anything but the frog-telling of fair or foul weather; or notice the ways of any untamed bird or beast, except that the crows come to pull corn, the hawks to steal the chickens, and the foxes to steal the lambs and turkeys! However, the farmer generally does feel a thrill of pleasure when in the hazy softness of a February or March day, he hears the caw of the first carrier seeking hungry crew. "The heart of winter is broke." In April when the fields begin to show a suspicion of coming green and give forth an odor of spring, and the dingy snowbanks along the fences are daily dwindling he welcomes the carol of the first blue bird, and is glad to hear the robin utter his restless note from the boughs of the old apple tree; and the clear voice of the new-come meadow lark strikes him as not altogether unmusical; and when he hears the plaintive cry of the grass-plover he is sure spring has come, and then he thinks of the small birds no more till the first blast of returning winter sweeps over the bare trees and frozen fields, when, all at once, he becomes aware that the troubadours are gone. He sees that the brave little chickadee remains faithful to his post, and feels that his cherry note outlives a little the dreariness of winter, as does the reedy piping of the nut-hatch and the voice of the downy, faller of life than of music, and the discordant note of the blue jay, who, clad in a bit of summer sky, proclaims his presence; but the singers are gone and he misses them.

Ayer's Hair Vigor,

A dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effective for preserving the hair. Tended or gray hair is soon restored to its original color, with the gloss and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use. Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such a result can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead of fueling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor can only benefit but not harm it. If wanted merely for a nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich, glossy lustre and a grateful perfume.

HAIR DRESSING,
