riches not happiness—he is kappier THAN THE RICHEST IN NEW YORK.

From Mr. Beecher's Sunday Sermon.

Riches if rightly used may contribute to happiness, but it is not true that riches in and of themselves can make a man happy. The richest men are not the happiest men on the globe, but some rich men are happy. A man can only be as happy as he can, and some men can only be a little happy under any circumstances. There are some men no bigger than a daisy. There is many and many a scoundrel and vulgar rascal inside of broadcloth. and riches don't make happiness any more than good clothes makes a gentleman. I am happier than the richest men in New York. I don't count the richest men in New York the happiest men; some of them are, I hope but that all of them are not I know. As there are streets even in New York with a clean surface above the filthy sewer below, so there are men.

Again, riches are apt to absorb the lite and time to a degree that shall harness men to mere external things so that they shall have very little leisure or disposition for self-culture. No man should embark in a business so large that he has no time for culture, for knowledge, or for social son of God. It is for this that we hearers. demand the Sabbath. A Disappointed Wedding.

Myatt's Mills, Jan. 26.—Yesterday morning it was known that a wedding was to take place at the residence of the bride, and the happy couple, attended by the bridesmaids and groomsmen were afterward to attend divine worship at the venerable church at Willow Springs, in this township. Consequently at an early hour many had assembled, both members and sighteers. Friendly greetings were exchanged, neighborhood news discussed, the great number that have already married and are still to be married wondered over; but it was plain that every one was more engrossed with the coming event than anything else. Notwithstanding the cold north wind that was blowing rather strong, many lingered outside late, in the hope of seeing the bridal train dash up to the church in the peculiar manner so becoming the happy occasion. However the majority of the people, driven by the cold, had turned in and were comfortably seated, as many as possible near the windows that command a view of the road from which the bridal party were expected to come. Significant glances and nods were exchanged between those in different parts of the church, and many necks were craned to get one glimpse friendship. A man pays dear for of the expected party, and it was very riches who is so eager in the pursuit evident that brother Wilson's effort to of them that he does not give himself instruct and edify was little appreciattime for God and for himself as the ed by a great many, at least, of his-

More Fraud. --

We have spoken, says the Review upon several occasions, of the fraudulent rottenness of the postoffice department at Washington, and a few days since we called attention to the disgraceful situation of our navy, and the extraordinary appropriations made to maintain the same. We are glad to know that the affairs of both of those departments are now undergoing a thorough and rigid scrutiny. In the former department, the enormous outlay of money has been traced to and accounted for by the most the connivance of one of the highest officials in the department, Second Assistant Postmaster General Brady. It has been shown by his own confession, which, however, assumed more the features of a boast than a statement made under any feeling of confew sordid, unprincipled contractors, row. with whom he shared in the spoils.

ARE SUPERIOR TO ALL OTHERS. The great demand for them has caused a number of unscrupulous parties to make and sell werkless imitations under similar sounding names. As the market is flooded with interior plasters selling at ally price, it is important for the consumer to know which is the best. It is well known that some of the cheap plasters have been examined and found to contain injurious ingredients which make them cangerous to use, causing paralysis and other diseases. "I was only thinking," replied she, jan14tf T. W. KENDALL. "how glad I should be if my copy said, 'Pleasure first-duty afterwards.' It's very hard to have the disagreeable things first. I wish I could have one whole week with no duties at all! How I should enjoy myself!"

Mrs. Leslie remained silent for a moment; then she said, while a quiet smile played round her lips, "Well, Amy, for once you shall have what you want. For a whole week you may amuse yourself; no duties, mind, my child-none at all."

"There is no chance of my wanting any, I assure you mamma," said Amy, joyfully; "I shall be so happy; you'll

"Very well, then," said Mrs. Leslie; "you may begin to-morrow. To-day I shall expect you to do as usual."

Amy said no more; she finished her copy, learned her lessons, then went to the nursery to take charge of her little brother, while the nurse was 500 modern ousy with other work. Afterwards there were socks to mend, and buttons to sew on baby's shoes and a letter to write. And so the day passed, and the next morning dawned on our pleasure loving little friend.

"No duties!" she said to herself, as she woke at seven, which was her usual time for rising; "No duties; so I can lie in bed as long as I please." And she turned over, and as she could not sleep, began making plans for the day, and thinking what a delightful time she should have. About halfpast nine she came down stairs, to find her breakfast on the table; milk toast, and egg, all as cold as possible. "What a wretched breakfast!" grumbled Amy, as she took her seat.

"Well, dear," replied Mrs. Leslie. "your breakfast was ready at the usual time, and of course is cold now."

Amy said no more. She ate with only half her usual appetite, and finishing in about five minutes, put away her chair, and left the room. As she went up stairs to fetch her hat baby pacific for GUANO. her to take him, she dashed past and left the little fellow with disappointment. She went down again, a fairybook in one hand, and a box of chocolate drops in the other.

The sweets had been a present, but hitherto her mother had only allowed her to have just one or two daily; now, however, she might do as she liked, and, at present, her idea of perfect plication of bliss was the combined charms of chocolate drops and fairy stories.

For about two hours she sat in the garden; then she grew tired, and a Little sick from eating too much chocolate and was returning to the house when her pet kitten ran out to meet her. For a short time she amused herself by playing with it, dressing it General Agents, - - Baltimore, Mr. up in her pocket-handkerchief and carrying it like a baby; but Miss For sale in Monroe, N. C. Pussy wearied of this, at last jumped out of her new dress and mistress's arm's leaving a scratch as a keepsake behind her.

Altogether the morning was hardly a successful one, nor was the afternoon much better. After dinner, one of Amy's little sisters tore her frock, and was running to Amy to ask her to mend it; but Mrs. Leslie said:

"Don't go to your sister, my child. come to me;" and little Jessie wondering, let her mother darn the rent. Amy felt very uncomfortable, for she knew that Mrs. Leslie's eyes were not very strong, and were probably aching with the effort of such fine work; but she shrank from offering her services, and made her escape from the room as soon as she could.

In the evening she was about to draw her chair to the fire and read the newspaper to Mr. Leslie, a duty of which she had always felt rather proud; but her father gravely took the the paper out of her hand, saying quickly, "No Amy this is a duty; remember you are to amuse yourself Awarded First Premium at Centennial Exhiand do nothing else."

Amy's eyes filled with tears, and ran up-stairs to her own room. She had no heart to read the fairy-book, or to play with her kitten, or even to eat the rest of her chocolate drops.

CELEBRATED DOMESTIC SEWING

FOR RESTORING GRAY HAIR TO ITS NATURAL VITALITY AND COLOR.

It is a most agreeable dressing, which is at once harmless and effectual, for preserving the hair. It restores, with the gloss and freshness of youth, faded or gray, light, and red hair, to a rich brown, or deep black, as may be desired. By its use thin hair is thickened, and baldness often though not always cured. It checks falling of the hair immediately, and causes a new growth in all cases where the glands are uot decayed; while to brashy, weak, or otherwise diseased hair, it imparts vitality and strength, and renders it pliable.

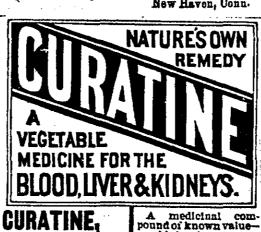

The Vigor cleanses the scalp, cures and prevents the formation of dandruff; and, by its cooling, stimulating, and soothing properties, it heals most if not all of the humors and diseases peculiar to the scalp, keeping it cool, clean, and soft, under which conditions diseases of the scalp and hair are impossible.

As a Dressing for Ladies' Hair The VIGOR is incomparable. It is colorless, contains neither oil nor dye, and will not soil white cambric. It imparts an agreeable and lasting perfume, and as an article for the toilet it is economical and unsurpassed in its excellence.
