The Surrender at Appomattox.

THE GEN. JNO. C. BLAKE'S HISTORY OF THE SURRENDER.

On the night of the 7th of April, 1865, was held Lee's last council of war. There was present Gen. Lee, Gen. Fitzhugh Lee, as head of the cavalry, and myself. Gen. Longstreet was I think too busily engaged to attend. Lee then exhibited to us the correspondence he had had with Gen. Grant that day and asked our opinion of the situation. It seemed that surrender was inevitable. The only chance of escape was that I could cut a way for the army through the lines in front of me. Gen. Lee asked me if I could do this. I replied that I did not know what forces were in front of me; that if Gen. Ord had not arrived—as we thought then he had not—with his heavy masses of infantry, I would cut through. I guaranteed that my men could cut a way through all the cavalry that could be massed in front of them. The council finally dissolved with the understanding that the army should be surrendered if I discovered the next morning, after feeling the enemy's line that the infantry had arrived in such force that I could not cut my way through.

"My men were drawn up in the little town of Appomattox that night—I still had about 4,000 men under me, as the army had been divided into two commands, and given to Gen. Longstreet and myself. Early on the morning of the 9th I prepared for the assault upon the enemy's line, and began the last fighting done in Virginia. My men rushed forward gamely and broke the line of the enemy, and captured two pieces of artillery. I was still unable to tell what I was fighting. I did not know whether I was striking infantry or dismounted cavalry. I only knew that my men were driving them back, and were getting further and further through. Just then I had a message from Gen. Lee, telling me a flag of truce was in existence leaving it to my discretion as to what course to pursue. My men were still pushing their way on. I sent at once to hear from Gen. Longstreet, feeling that if he was marching toward me, we might still cut through and carry the army forward. I learned that he was about two miles off, with his men faced just opposite from mine, fighting for his life. The further each of us drove the other the further we drifted apart, and the more exposed we left our wagon trains and artillery, which were parked between us. Every time either of us broke, only opened the gap the wider. I saw plainly that the Federals would soon rush in between us, and then there would have been no army. I therefore determined to send a flag of truce. I called Major Hunter, of my staff, to me and told him that I wanted him to carry a flag of truce forward. He replied: "General, I have no flag of truce." "I told him to get one. He replied: "General, we have no flag of truce in our command."

"Then said I: "Then get your handkerchief, put it on a stick, and go forward." "I have no handkerchief, General. Then borrow one and go forward with it." "He tried, and reported to me that there was not a handkerchief in my staff."

"Then major, use your shirt!" "You see, General, that we all have on flannel shirts." "At last, I believe, we found a man who had a white shirt. He gave it to us and I tore off the back and tail, and rigging this to a stick, Maj Hunter went out towards the enemy's lines. I instructed him to simply say to Gen. Sheridan that Gen. Lee had written me that a flag of truce had been sent from his to Grant's headquarters, and that he could act as he thought best on this information. In a few moments he came back with Maj. —, of Sheridan's staff. This officer said: "Gen. Sheridan requests me to present his compliments to you, and to demand the unconditional surrender of your army."

"Major, you will please return my compliments to Gen. Sheridan, and say that I will not surrender." "But, General, he will annihilate you." "I am perfectly well aware of my situation. I simply gave Gen. Sheridan some information on which he may or may not desire to act." I showed Gen. Sheridan Gen. Lee's note and he determined to await events. He dismounted and I did the same. Then, for the first time, the men seemed to understand what it all meant. And then the poor fellows broke down. The men cried like children. Worn, starved, and bleeding as they were, they would rather have died than have surrendered. At one word from me they would have hurled themselves on the enemy and out their way through, have fallen to a man with their guns in their hands. But I could not permit it. The great drama had been played to its end. But men are seldom permitted to look upon such a scene as the one presented there. That these men should have wept at surrendering so unequal a fight; at being taken out of this constant carnage and storm; at being sent back to their families; that they should have wept at having their starved and wasted forms lifted out of the jaws of death, and placed once more before their heartstones, was an exhibition of fortitude and patriotism that might set an example for all time.

"Ah, sir, every ragged soldier that surrendered that day, from the high-set to the lowest; from the old veteran to the headless boy, every one of them, carried a heart of gold in his breast. It made my heart bleed for them, and sent the tears streaming down my face as I saw them surrender the poor, riddled, battle-stained flags that they had so often followed, and that had been made sacred with the blood of their comrades. The poor fellows would step forward, give up the scanty rag that they had held so precious through so many long and weary years, and then turn and wring their hands together and bend their heads in an agony of grief. Their sobs and the sobs of their comrades could be heard for yards around. Others would tear the precious rag from the staff and hide it in their bosoms and hold it there. As General Lee rode down the line with me, and saw the men crying, and heard them cheering "Uncle Robert" with their simple but pathetic remarks, he turned to me and said, in a broken voice, "Oh, General, if it had only been my lot to have fallen in one of our battles, to have given my life to this cause that we could not save." I told him that he should not feel that way; that he had done all that mortal man could do, and that every man and woman in the South would feel this and would make him feel it. "No!" he said, "there will be many who will blame me. But, General, I have the consolation of knowing that my conscience approves what I have done, and that the army sustains me."

"In a few hours the army was scattered, and the men went back to their ruined and dismantled homes, many of them walking all the way to Georgia and Alabama, all of them penniless, worn out and well nigh heart-broken. Thus passed away Lee's army; thus were his last battles fought; thus was it surrendered, and thus was the great American tragedy closed—let us all hope, forever."

Jefferson Davis.

"Nineteen out of every twenty of twenty of the baptized male children of the South born of white parents are named Jeff Davis."—New York Commercial Advertiser.

"We never saw or heard of one of that name, and doubt if there are nineteen in the whole South."—Chronicle and Constitutionalist.

Editors Chronicle and Constitutionalist: I read the above a few days ago. I would be untrue to myself and the Lost Cause I so dearly love were I to refrain from telling you that we have a son who bears the name of Jeff Davis. I think you are mistaken in your statement that Mr. Davis has so few namesakes in the South, and I will venture the assertion that more children have been called for him since the surrender than before. Have you forgotten, Messrs. Editors, that Sunday afternoon fourteen years ago, when the President of the Southern Confederacy passed through the streets of Augusta a prisoner? A day when men were so crushed they scarcely dared to lift their hats or women to wave their handkerchiefs in token of respect as the sad procession passed them by—a day when the news having arrived that "Jeff Davis was a prisoner and was coming through the city," the colored churches were all dismissed, and through the streets pell mell the crowd came hurrying on to witness the humiliation of our fallen chieftain. Early in that day, with a vain hope, I said to my eldest son: "Go Turner, and as you are a little boy, perhaps you can shake hands with Mr. Davis. Tell him 'mamma says God bless you.' Our curly-headed four-year-old boy had borne the name of his father (Jeff.) That afternoon we added the name of Davis, and when he becomes a man of it will be worthy of the honor of bearing it. That day so mournful, so unutterably sad, together with his long captivity at Fortress Monroe, has elevated Mr. Davis to a position in which he may bid defiance to the sneers of the North. Mr. Lamar's stinging rebuke to Senator Hoar, referring to an attack made by the latter upon Mr. Davis; "When Promethus was bound to the rock it was not an eagle, it was a vulture, that buried his beak into the tortured vitals of his victim," was intended for a Northern man, but oh how the bitter cry of and "Thou, too, Brutus," must be wrung from Mr. Davis at times when pierced by his friends?"

Whipping Mormons in Cherokee County.—We mentioned last week that there were two Mormons at work in Cherokee county. We learn that they succeeded in making several converts when the people quite handsomely tickled the preachers with lickeriy twigs, inducing them to leave the county in haste. Not content with this, the citizens thought it advisable to "tickle" the converts also. One fellow complains bitterly that the tickling was done while he had only his shirt to protect him. The "converts" some thirty in number, including several females—indeed a majority of the converts are women—have sold their goods and chattels and are about moving to Utah.—Asheville Citizen.

The latest sensation in the Conkling Sprague scandal is that Mrs. Sprague has escaped from her husband's home with her three daughters, the son remaining with his father. The escape was arranged and carried out very successfully by a lawyer named Thompson of Providence. The secret of her whereabouts has been so well preserved that Gov. Sprague is ignorant of a course, and has determined upon a course of action that will possibly bring about very sensational results. He claims to be in possession of evidence that will free him from her.

The yellow fever hits its own in ill-fated Memphis. There is no abatement in the daily number of deaths.

The indications now are that there is a general revival of business all through the country. The Boston Post says that "when Mr. Tilden gave it as his opinion that the next four years would be a term of great, if not unexampled, prosperity on a solid basis, he undoubtedly voiced the opinion of all the ablest business men of the country, and added one more instance of sagacity to the many by which his life has been distinguished. It is almost inevitable that the era upon which we are entering should be full of healthy activity for industry, trade and commerce. Natural causes and natural law will make it so. The crisis has been passed, improvement visible to all discerning eyes has set in, and now all that is necessary for the people of this country is to stand aside and not interfere with the workings of Providence. The feeling of assurance and stability for which we have been waiting has taken possession of the various circles of business, and there is general belief that as sure as the laws of cause and effect are kept in operation, so sure are we to have a better business this coming Fall than has been known before since the period of depression fairly set in. If this does not prove so, then some of the best business heads in the country will lose faith in their ability to read the signs."

Senator Vance's Movements.—Immediately after the adjournment of the Topeka, Kan., joining at Washington other members of the Senate sub-committee of privileges and elections appointed to investigate the charges of bribery against Senator Ingalls of Kansas, in connection with his election to the Senate, Senator Salisbury, of Delaware, is chairman of this sub-committee. It will begin its sittings at Topeka on the 10th inst., and will probably finish its work in ten days. Immediately thereafter, provided the session does not continue longer than the time indicated Senator Vance will go to Ohio and enter the canvass there, making four or five speeches in behalf of Gen. Ewing during the week preceding the election, which occurs on the 13th of October. The same sub-committee that will visit Kansas, is also charged with an investigation of the Spoils-Kellogg case, from Louisiana, and had expected to sit at New Orleans for this purpose, but owing to the prevalence of yellow fever there this much of its mission will be abandoned.—Charlotte Observer.

Not Guilty.—On Saturday last the case of George Pethel, who was charged with killing his wife by poisoning her, on or about the 1st of February, 1878, was commenced. This case originated in Rowan county, was removed to Iredell and then to Iredell to Mecklenburg. The State was represented by Solicitor Montgomery and Capt. Charles Price of Salisbury. Messrs. Shipp & Baily of this city, and Messrs. J. W. Manney and J. M. Gray of Salisbury, appeared for Pethel. Four days were consumed in examining witnesses and hearing arguments of counsel, which were concluded on Wednesday evening, and the case was given into the hands of the jury about 10 o'clock on Wednesday night, with instructions to report on Thursday morning if they could agree. The jury brought in a verdict of not guilty.—Charlotte Democrat.

According to the Oxford Torchlight, Granville county once had a modern Sampson in the person of a negro named Elijah, owned by Charles Hefflin. He was six feet four inches high, weighed 290 pounds, and could take up a barrel containing thirty or forty gallons, stand erect and hold the bung to his mouth and drink out of it; he could throw an ordinary sized anvil twenty-five yards; he could "pull down" four men with a handspike at one time; he could shoulder and carry a log that would make seventy-five to hundred rails; he could lift a three-year old colt over an eight rail fence; he could jump sixteen feet high, and he once killed a deer on Mayfield's Mountain with a rock, overtook and dispatched a black bear in Fort Creek with an axe; caught and manured a ferocious bull, and beat a horse in a two mile race for $5.

Notice of Land Sale.—BY VIRTUE OF A MORTGAGE DEED executed to us on 30th day of January, 1879, by G. W. Walden and wife, Francis Ann Walden, and duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for Union county, N. C., in Book O, page 76, we will, to satisfy the mortgage, sell at public sale, in the Court-house door in Monroe, N. C., on 6th day of October, 1879—being first Monday—at public auction for cash, that valuable tract of land conveyed in said mortgage, and lying in Union county on the waters of Beaver Dam Creek, adjoining the lands of Thomas Griffin, W. B. Poands, and others, and containing one hundred acres. Also, one house and 400 ft. of land in the town of Union, in the town of Greenville, adjoining lots of W. C. Ferris, Wm. Kennedy and others, containing one acre. Persons desiring to purchase valuable real estate will do well to attend this sale. This 30th day of July, 1879. A. E. CROWELL, M. C. CROWELL.

The "School Bill" Case.—On last Tuesday, the Chief Justice announced from the Bench the unanimous decision of the Supreme Court in the cases against Messrs. Robinson and Moring, and Secretary of State Sanders, brought to cause writs of mandamus to issue, compelling the formation to sign the School Bill, and the latter to receive it as a law.

Owing to the delay of the term at which the argument was concluded, and the incessant labors of the Court since that time, the Justices have not prepared their opinion, but for reasons of public policy have determined to announce their unanimous conclusion upon the law. They hold that the requirement of the Constitution that "every bill, etc., shall be read three times in each House before it shall pass into a law; and shall be signed by the presiding officers of the respective Houses," is mandatory, and that there can be no law which is not signed by the presiding officers. That the Supreme Court has no power to coerce the defendant Speakers into signing the bill; and that the Speakers have no right or power to sign the bill after the adjournment of the General Assembly.

The opinion will not be filed before the January Term.—Bal. Observer.

Wilmingon Star: A rather knotty case came up before a magistrate for solution yesterday. It seems that two colored men owned a horse jointly—each being half owner. One of them, who was working with the horse, mortgaged the animal without the knowledge or consent of the other, and in the course of time the mortgagee was foreclosed and the horse sold. The other owner now comes forward and wants his half, but the animal has been sold to a third party, and the question is how can this owner recover or get possession of his property, for if a writ of claim and delivery is issued, the officer cannot seize one-half of the horse without taking the other. The case is still on.

Senator Vance has been to Statesville, was serenaded, and made a speech. The Landmark reports him as saying: He thought the outlook encouraging to the Democratic party. There would be no more counting in a fraudulent President, for there was "a different bull dog at the rat hole this time." The next man who would take the Presidential seat would be one who received the most votes—which had not lately been the case. The next President would be declared elected by honest men, and not by an Electoral Commission.

Gen. Grant is expected to reach San Francisco about the 15th of September.

The Crops in the State.

From the official report we learn some interesting facts in relation to the crops in North Carolina. Most crops were retarded by the unusually protracted drouth...

The area devoted to the tobacco crop is being gradually enlarged in those counties which but recently have adopted it as a money crop.

Winter oats—the crop sown in the fall was generally very inferior; the spring crop generally good.

Among the many gratifying proofs of improvement among our farmers, none denotes reform and advancement more certainly than the growing interest in the cultivation of grasses.

Washing Butter.—Repeated experiments of butter-making by those accustomed to the business show that washing out the buttermilk is much better than to work it out—the process being to begin as soon as the butter is about ready to come by pouring into the churn sufficient cold water to reduce the temperature to 54 or 55 degrees, and then to continue the churning slowly for a few minutes longer, when the globules, instead of adhering together in one solid mass, requiring the butter-milk to be worked out, will gather into separate granules or pellets of solid butter, which, at fifty-four degrees, are about the size of grains of wheat, increasing in size as the temperature rises, until at 55 degrees they are about the size of peas—the lower the temperature the smaller the granules, and the lighter the temperature the larger the granules—until at last they all adhere together in one solid mass.

GREEN FOOD FOR FOWLS.—Fowls cannot get along well on grain food alone and must in both Winter and Summer be supplied with some green, succulent food...

of grass or other green food. The place must be small, indeed, which cannot afford enough grass for a flock of fowls. If such cannot be obtained, cut a bunch of fine young grass early every morning for them, and they will show you how badly they need it by eating it up, with evident relish.

Would NEVER USE THEM.—If persons were aware of the injurious character of most baking powders, they would never use them. Ignorant persons know nothing about the chemical combinations necessary. The only good baking powder prepared by a physician with special regard to its healthfulness, is Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder.

THE GENUINE DR. C. McLANE'S WORM SPECIFIC OR VERMIFUGE.

SYMPTOMS OF WORMS.

THE countenance is pale and leaden-colored, with occasional flushes, or a circumscribed spot on one or both cheeks; the eyes become dull; the pupils dilate; an azure semicircle runs along the lower eye-lid; the nose is irritated, swells, and sometimes bleeds; a swelling of the upper lip; occasional headache, with humming or throbbing of the ears; an unusual secretion of saliva; slimy or furred tongue; breath very foul, particularly in the morning; appetite variable, sometimes voracious, with a gnawing sensation of the stomach, at others, entirely gone; heaving pains in the stomach; occasional nausea and vomiting; violent pains irregular, at times colic; stools slimy; not unfrequently tinged with blood; belly swollen and hard; urine turbid, respiration occasionally difficult, and accompanied by hicough; cough sometimes dry and convulsive; uneasy and disturbed sleep, with grinding of the teeth; temper variable, but generally irritable, &c.

DR. C. McLANE'S VERMIFUGE will certainly effect a cure. IT DOES NOT CONTAIN MERCURY in any form; it is an innocent preparation, not capable of doing the slightest injury to the most tender infant.

DR. C. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS are not recommended as a remedy "for all the ills that flesh is heir to," but in affections of the liver, and in all Bilious Complaints, Dyspepsia and Sick Headache, or diseases of that character, they stand without a rival.
